

Jean-Charles Le Huec

Jean-Charles Le Huec completed all of his education in his homeland, France. His initial degree was received in 1985 in applied statistics in biology, with a second degree in anatomy and organogenesis in 1986. Also completed in 1986 was a Master's equivalent in Human Biology with emphasis in anatomy. In 1987 he was fellow in Montreal (Canada) and participated in various research project (spine and knee). In 1987 he received an additional degree in the Biology of Sports medicine and in 1989 he completed studies in Microsurgery followed by General Surgery in 1990.

JC Le Huec became a medical doctor in 1987 and continued his studies in Biomechanics and Biomaterials completing his initial studies in 1990 and receiving his physical doctorate in 1997. In 1998 he became a Professor of orthopaedics and traumatology.

Professor Le Huec is a member of the French College and Society of Orthopaedic Surgery, the Group International (IGASS), the Spine Society of Europe (SSE) past president), the North American Spine Society (NASS), ISASS past president.

Professor Le Huec is Chief of Spine Unit and chairman of the Department of Orthopaedic and Traumatology at the Bordeaux University Hospital. He is Director of the laboratory of surgical research at the Bordeaux University School of Medicine. Professor Le Huec has numerous publications and participates in numerous research projects about spine pathologies, biomaterials and computer assisted surgery.