

Martin Gossling

Martin, CEO of 270 Vision Ltd developers of world class wearable technology, has an extensive product design background including electronic design, software and graphical user interface development. Initially trained as a product designer and now has 25+ years of international technology sales and marketing experience covering mobile, software technology and gaming industries. He has a First Class Honours degree in Design and Technology and is ex-triathlete with in-depth appreciation of the issues around sports training and recovery.